Company Overview

Genoil is building a new international global network to develop ten million barrels per day of new oil production from conventional reserves that is profitable at today's low oil prices. The company is a provider of world leading hydroconversion fixed bed technology for upstream and downstream oil and gas industry. The company is also working with a top Chinese policy bank and Chinese companies to provide, project financing, drilling, production, and processing services to the oil and gas industry. Through these partnerships and strong financial backing, Genoil can supply the oil industry with a full range of products and services, from exploration through production, solutions for hydrocarbon development and recovery, upgrading and environmental protections services. Complemented by partners who have many years of operational experience we can provide a wide range of process technologies at unparalleled value to our customers.
